Volcanic Vineyards

The community of Manton lies just below Lassen Volcanic National Park in the heart of a valley formed by thousands of years of volcanic activity. To the east stands Lassen Peak where below lies a massive caldera, the remnant of ancient Mount Tehama. These geological features create the perfect conditions for producing the award winning wines of the Manton Vineyards.

At 2,200 feet in elevation, the climate in Manton fuels the growth of some of the finest grapes in the state of California. Gentle breezes sweep down from the slopes of Mt. Lassen through the Manton Valley, providing a mild climate during the hottest months of the year. The cool evening air allows the grapes to mature at a slower pace giving them richer character and flavor.

The volcanic soil is that unique feature which gives the vineyards in Manton their distinctive edge. The soils are rich in nutrients, allow excellent drainage, and promote deep root systems.

Amazing Olive Facts

Tehama County is an agriculturally rich and diverse region of Northern California. Tehama County sits at the head of California's Central Valley and is traversed by the Sacramento River. This provides it with both high quality soils majestic valley and mountain views. Predominant among Tehama County's agricultural products are walnuts, beef, dried plums, timber, dairy products, almonds, and olives.

Because of its Mediterranean climate, Tehama County is ideally suited for growing olives. Summer temperatures usually exceed 100° Fahrenheit while winter temperatures hover around 40-50°.

Olive trees were introduced to Tehama County in the late 1800's and early 1900's. Two primary varieties include the Mission variety and the Sevillano variety. Mission trees bear small fruit with very high oil content, while the Sevillanos produce the largest of all table olives but one of the lowest producing oil fruits. In addition to these varieties, Tehama County also features many acres of Manzanillo and Ascolana olives, both of which are good oil producing olive varieties.

There were over 5500 productive acres of olives in Tehama County in 2001. A large majority of this acreage was harvested for the olive canning industry. The remainder of this acreage was harvested for olive oil production and sold to producers throughout the state, including many in prestigious Napa and Sonoma Counties.

Added Bonus to Olive Oil Tasting: Olive oil is a boost to your health. Multitudes of health studies praise the benefits of including olive oil in our diet. Most of the world is aware of the healthy connection between the Mediterranean people and their diet. These are countries where olive oil is virtually the only fat consumed, and where healthiness and longevity thrive.

Located in the fertile Northern Sacramento Valley, Tehama County is host to a diverse and rich eco system which yields some of the finest produce in the world.

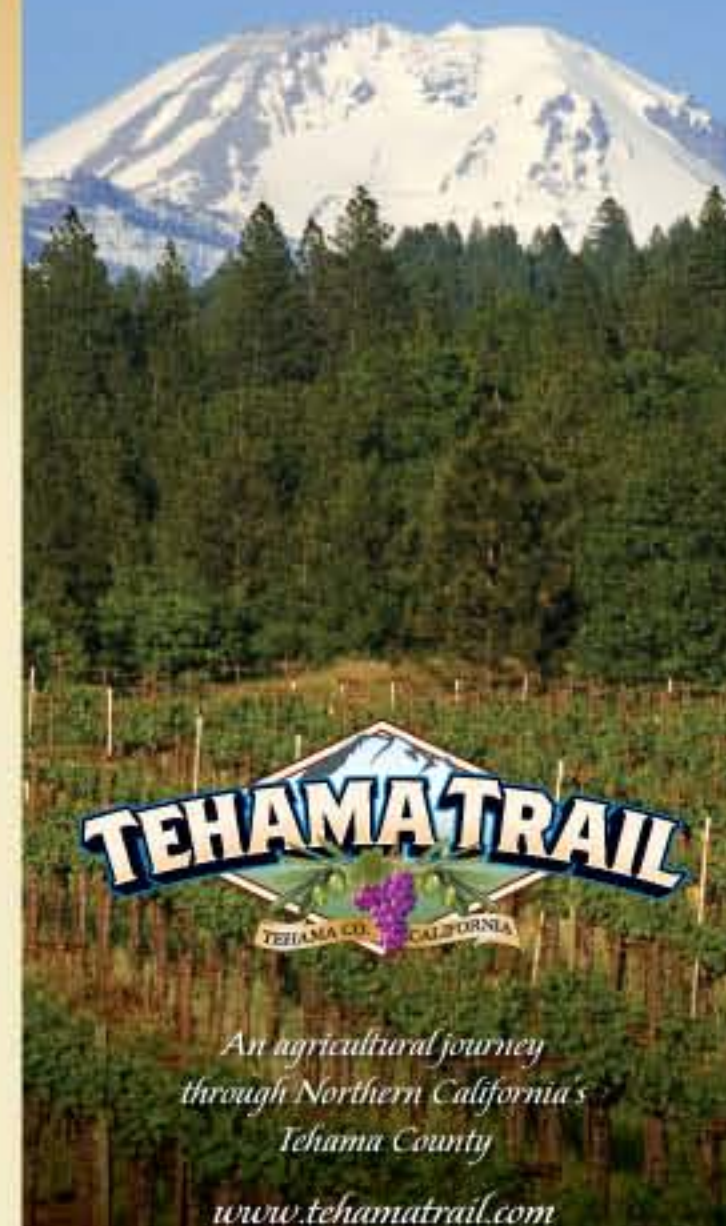

The Tehama Trail is a journey that begins in Corning, visiting world class olive and olive oil producers. A short trip to the east finds you in Yuba where the Monks of the Abbey of New Clairvaux practice ancient traditions of grape growing and wine making. On the way north to the Volcanic Vineyards of Manton, there are several interesting stops on Hwy 99 worth the stop.

After sampling the wines of the slopes of Mt. Lassen, the trail takes you to Historic Downtown Red Bluff where quaint shops and riverfront dining are a way of life.
